

The Electron Stabilizer

The 'Electron Stabilizer' was created in accordance with Nicola Tesla's conceptual plans for a device that was specifically designed to help protect people from the 'alternating current' that he came to realize would be very harmful.

"The alternating current that I have invented will prove to be the most dangerous thing on earth and I must find an alternative."

Unfortunately, he was not able to stop the bankers and the commercial businesses from profiteering and capitalizing on his invention. Nicola Tesla's dream of providing the world with 'free energy' was simply not in alignment with their insatiable appetite for greed and world domination. To prove that energy could be freely harnessed from the earth, and by tapping into its specific frequency, Tesla was able to successfully demonstrate the result of 200 light bulbs (i.e. of 50watts each) being lit from a distance of 40 kms away. This was an extraordinary achievement that would have revolutionized the world, yet it was suppressed and to this day remains hidden from the public.

Therefore, the only option left for Tesla, was to create a way of treating the monstrosity he had created by using the frequency of the earth to harmonize the dirty electricity. This is precisely what the stabilizer is designed to do. Biological testing done on dozens of people demonstrate a considerable decrease in biological stress. People have reported less fatigue and fewer headaches, less eyestrain when working on the computer and calmer work environment.

A power cord is fitted inside the stabilizer and plugged into the wall. It's important that the cord be plugged to a steady stream of power such as the television with standby energy. The electrical circuitry of your home or building ensures the energy that passes through the stabilizer is treated, therefore effectively treating all electrical appliances and equipment as well as your internal lighting.